I am here shown in a Gun Metal Blucher on the knickerbocker last, which the men like so much because it fits in around the curves of the foot. It was designed for this special purpose and fulfills it.

A shoe made from Gun Metal is a mighty good one to own. It requires less attention than any other leather made. It has a dull finish naturally and needs no polish. It stretches but very little, if at all, and fits the foot from the time it leaves the store until it is worn out.

THE GORDINER SOLD.

On Wednesday of this week a deal was closed whereby the Gordiner Hotel property owned by A. G. Mel-

John, was sold to H. L. Quandt, a former resident of Royalton, but who has been a resident of Mississippi for the past few years. Mr. Quandt will take possession of the hotel on April first.—Waupaca Post.

Mr. Gordiner the former proprietor is the father of Mrs. H. F. Steel, and the new proprietor's wife, Mrs. Quandt is a sister of Mrs. S. Kelley.

OBITUARIES.

A Well Known Resident Passes Away.

The death of Mrs. D. H. Vaughan, Saturday morning came as a shock even though she was known to be in a critical condition.

On Monday, Jan. 21, just as she was finishing the closing sentences of a paper to be used the following day at the Woman's Club, she received a shock, rendering her unconscious and affecting the entire right side. In a few days she seemed better and some hope was entertained, but some days before her death she again lost consciousness and could not again be roused. Some time ago she was examined by a specialist who found apoplectic tendencies, but of late she had seemed so much better, that her family and friends hoped that this tendency had been overcome.

Mrs. Vaughan, nee Jennie Brawley, was born in Stevens Point in 1851 and lived in that city until 1893. Her father was one of the first permanent white settlers of the Stevens Point country. After her marriage to David H. Vaughan, Stevens Point still remained her home for many years. After moving to Rhinelander the family took up a homestead but have since made their home in the city where Mrs. Vaughan has gained a host of friends. She was of a sociable nature and enjoyed having her friends around her. She was an active member in the Episcopal Church and also in the Woman's Club and her loss will be felt keenly by both of these organizations, as well as by many friends both here and at Stevens Point.

She is survived by her husband and eight grown children. The latter are Mrs. Charles Lau of Star Lake, Misses Lou and Virginia at home, Lynn under sheriff of Oneida County, Charles a civil engineer now employed in Mississippi, Clayton and Catawba, Russell, a student at Madison, and Donald at home. She is also survived by three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Elizabeth Newton of Vausau, Mrs. S. A. Whitney and J. Brawley of Stevens Point, Mrs. Virginia Bailey and Abraham Brawley of Oak Park, Ill.

The funeral, which was private was held from the house, Father Johnson officiating.

Wm Murphy, a well known resident of the North Side, died suddenly Monday morning at Max Ostrowski's camp near North Crandon. Mr. Murphy was employed by Mr. Ostrowski as teamster. As is the custom in camp, the man arose early to care for his team. He had just about completed his chores when he was taken suddenly ill and complained of pains in his side. There was nothing which might offer him relief except a bottle of pain killer that was found in the office. This medicine was about to be administered, when to the great surprise of those gathered about him, he suddenly expired.

The remains were brought to this city and prepared for burial. The funeral was held at ten o'clock yesterday morning from St. Mary's Church. The services were conducted by Father Francis. Mr. Murphy was forty eight years of age and had always appeared in the best of health, and his sudden death seems hard to realize.

A long list of friends and acquaintance extend their heartfelt sympathy to the widow and family.

Fred Banks of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. received a telegram today from Omro, Wis., announcing the death of L. M. Bennett. Mr. Bennett was employed here for several years by the Singer Sewing Machine Co. and was quite well known in Ashland, being a member of the G. A. R. He has been ill at his home in Omro for nearly two years.—Ashland News.

Mr. Bennett was at one time a resident of this city and has a large number of friends here who deeply regret to learn of his death.

TAKEN TO ASYLUM.

Mrs. Jas. Carlin, a resident of Minocqua, was taken to the Northern Asylum at Oshkosh, Friday by Sheriff Dolan. The lady has temporarily lost her mind and she may recover after a course of treatment at the hospital. Mrs. Carlin's case is a particularly sad one as she is the mother of several little children, who will be without her care.

FATHER VAUGHAN MARCH 7TH.

Owing to the tie-up of railway traffic due to the storm and cold weather of Saturday, Father Vaughan, who was scheduled to lecture in this city that evening, was unable to arrive here. As a consequence the date of the lecture has been postponed until Thursday evening March 7th.

LOOKING FOR HEIR.

Chas. Asmundson, administrator of the estate of the late Matt Thompson, has been making an effort to locate the heirs of the deceased. It is said that Thompson had relatives in Wausau and Mr. Asmundson has been endeavoring to locate them through the newspapers of that city.

VALUABLE FIND.

Rare Metals Found Near Oneida Mining Company's Claims.

An examination of the ore in the New Rambler Mining property at Holmes, Albany Co., Wyoming, owned by the North American Exploitation Co., has revealed that while the mine is being worked for its product of copper, rare and valuable quantities of palladium and platinum have hitherto been thrown into the dump as being too low a grade for shipment under former existing circumstances, but which now will yield more than the average mine produces in its entire existence. On about 1000 pounds of the slime after electrolytic treatment the value was found to average about $9.10 to the pound. The peculiar feature of this mine is the association of gold, silver, platinum and palladium and this is the only place in America where platinum is found in commercial quantities. The U. S. Government through the geological corps of the department of the Interior has made tests throughout the country and finds that the New Rambler is the only property in the U. S. that has a sufficient quantity of platinum to retain the department's interest.

The above will be of more interest when it is known that the Oneida Mining Co. is only a quarter of a mile from the New Rambler claims and that many of our citizens are stockholders in the Oneida Co. mine, which is an 80 acre patented claim under the government. The following are the officers:

CHASED BY WOLVES.

John McGuire, a teamster employed at a camp near Pelican Lake, was in the city Saturday. McGuire had an exciting experience with wolves while driving into camp late last Thursday night. He was on the tote team and had a big load of supplies among which was several quarters of beef. It was the smell of the raw meat that attracted the brutes' attention. McGuire was over two miles from camp when the chase began. He whipped his horses almost furiously in his efforts to widen the distance between him and his pursuers. The pack gained steadily and so close did one of them come to the sleigh that it jumped at a hind quarter and nearly succeeded in securing it. Just as it took as though the race was about at an end, as far as McGuire and his team were concerned, the camp clearing hove in sight and the animals took to the woods. Had the teamster been armed he says that he could easily have shot many of the pack, which at a rough guess, must have numbered nearly a dozen. The next day one of the crew killed a wolf within twenty rods of the shanties. The animals are very numerous in that vicinity and there is talk of organizing a posse to rid the county of the pests.

WAS HERE IN EARLY DAYS.

John Brunette of Seattle, Wash., was in the city Saturday. Mr. Brunette is in a business which he finds most profitable, that of gathering Indian relics and ornaments from the Western tribes and disposing of such to eastern dealers. He spent some time recently in Montana, the Dakotas and Northern Minnesota succeeding in accumulating a large and valuable collection of Indian stuff. Axel Lindgren, the local dealer, made some heavy purchases of him. Mr. Brunette was in Rhinelander when it was only a clearing in the woods and the few inhabitants lived in log shanties and tents. He worked on the construction of the old dam on the Wisconsin river. Although over thirty years have elapsed since that time Mr. Brunette could not help but express surprise at the size of Rhinelander today.

AGAIN, FREE ART EXHIBITION.

The Woman's Club invites the public to attend the Free Art Exhibition to be held in the lecture room of the library building Feb. 8th and 9th. The room will be open from 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m., also Sunday afternoon Feb. 10th from 3 to 6. Every one loves pictures but few know art. It is hoped that the public will turn out and show its appreciation of this rare opportunity to see good art.

BOBBERS' BIG HAUL.

Home of Robert Young at Hurley Entered and Over $300 Stolen.

The home of Robt. Young at Hurley was entered by robbers last Thursday and over $300 stolen. Mr. Young was formerly employed here by the American Express Co. and is agent for the company at Hurley. He is a son-in-law of Thos. O'Hare. The following account of the robbery is from the Montreal Miner:

"The house of Express Agent Young on Second Avenue North was entered by burglars during Wednesday night and about $300 in cash and a number of money orders were stolen from the drawer of a washstand in the room where Mr. Young was sleeping. It is a rule of the express company that agents must not leave money or valuables in the safes at their offices during the night time and it has been the habit of the local agent to carry his money taken in during the day home with him at night. Mr. Young knew nothing of the robbery until he came to go for the money yesterday morning as he was about to start for the office. He found the drawer where he usually kept it empty. Calling his wife they commenced to make examinations and found in an adjacent closet that some one had been there and had pulled out the drawers of a dresser standing therein and had taken a small sum of money from a purse belonging to Mr. Young. Upon further examination they found the front door of the house unlocked and the key lying on the floor nearby. This was convincing evidence that burglars had been in the house and Mr. Young at once reported to the police and the sheriff and these officers are working on the case. It was a very bold piece of business and shows the handwork of experts.

HURT BY TRAIN.

In an attempt to board number two the south bound Northwestern passenger train near Elcho last Saturday morning, a woodsman named Standard, was thrown between the wheels receiving injuries which may prove fatal. His shoulders and head were terribly cut and bruised and he was also injured internally. He was removed to the Antigo Hospital. Standard is about forty years of age and has worked in the woods in this section for several years. He is said to have been a heavy drinker and was no doubt under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident.

HIS LEG BROKEN.

A woodsman named Windyle who was employed at Chas. Flagel's camp near Rainbow, is confined at St. Mary's hospital, his right leg broken in two places. While at work last Wednesday, the man was struck by a limb from a tree resulting in the injury. It will be a number of weeks before he can leave the hospital and will not be able to resume work for several months. Mr. Windyle is a brother-in-law of Mr. Flagel.

WOODSMAN INJURED.

Chas. Langer, a woodsman employed at a camp near Jennings, was brought to the City Thursday, his left leg broken from being struck with a falling tree. The injured man was attended to by Dr. Stone. Langer is without friends and is being cared for at the county hospital.

BASE BALL TALK.

Although a little early, many of the local "fans" are beginning to talk base-ball and a meeting will soon be held for the purpose of discussing the proposition of organizing a team for the season of 1907. There are already a number of candidates in line for position on the team and no difficulty will be experienced in organizing.

The majority of these candidates are out siders and strangers to our people but it is said that they are all natural born ball players and understand the art from a to z. Of course they are all out for the coin, but then the local promoters would never hesitate over the matter of a few paltry shickels providing the men make good. It is expected that more of the business people will become interested in the sport this year as their support will be needed. Everybody should endeavor to attend the meeting and boost for the all star team.

NORTHERN LIGHTS CLUB.

The following program has been arranged by the committee to be given Wednesday evening February 13th, in Odd Fellows' Hall at 7:30 p. m. Rev. A. G. Wilson, leader:

Immigration — W. C. Orr
Benefits and Weaknesses of the Jury System — H. Reeves
Credit on Business Uses and Abuses—How Affected by Present Exemption Law — D. J. Cole
Following the program lunch will be served.

RINK OPENED SATURDAY.

The roller skating rink at the Armory under the management of the New York Amusement Company opened to the public Saturday afternoon. Since then the attendance has been large, showing that the young people are taking great interest in the sport.

THIS WILL PLEASE THE GROCER.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7, 1907.—There has just been filed with the Department of Agriculture here, one of the strongest documents we have ever seen. It guarantees that Jell-O and Jell-O Ice Cream Powder are strictly pure and comply with the requirements of the National Pure Food Law. The guarantee is filed under serial number 1634, and protects absolutely all wholesale and retail grocers who handle the products named. Jell-O and Jell-O Ice Cream Powder are well thought of in official circles and their purity and wholesomeness has never been questioned.

SAW HIS SHADOW.

The sun shone last Saturday and of course the sleepy old ground hog saw his shadow and retired to his cozy den for another little snooze of six weeks. If we still retain faith in that old tradition which has been handed down from generation to generation, the hog's retirement means that we are yet to have nearly two months of cold, dreary winter weather. Not a very pleasant prospect—providing it proves to be as fierce as that of the last two weeks.

A LOTTERY PRIZE

By R. ARTHUR

(Copyright, 1904, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

One afternoon, on getting home from the office, I found May waiting at the door in a state of intense excitement.

"Fred!" she screamed, before I got to the gate, "where is that ticket?"

"What on earth is the matter?" I asked.

"Oh, you have lost it! I know you have! And I shall never get anything again I wanted so much."

As she seemed about to dissolve into tears I made a dash up the steps. I had seen above all things, and I felt instinctively that our neighbor, Mrs. Markey, was peeping at us from behind the curtains next door.

"Now dear," I began, when I had closed the door, "you mustn't excite yourself, you know you mustn't."

"But Fred," she sobbed, "we've won a prize—a magnificent mahogany suite; but we won't get it now you've lost the ticket."

I suddenly remembered. In spite of my objections May had bought a ticket in the grand Hibernal Lodge lottery, and the suite she talked about must be the second prize. I ran into the dining-room, and a few minutes' search unearthed a flaring red ticket.

After the first joy of gaining something at the expense of other people, the question arose, what was to be done? Our house of five rooms and a kitchen was fully furnished. The furniture meant my savings for two years before our marriage. We really had not room for anything else. I timidly suggested that we should try and get the suite changed into money. May turned on me with a fine scorn in her eye.

"You never want to have things look nice," she cried. "Why we have nothing decent in the house."

This was rather hard on the furniture I had given up cigars and the theater for. But it doesn't do to argue with May. So it was soon settled, and that evening we proceeded to the Metropolitan furniture store to view the suite.

The sight of it made my heart sink. It would have done for a palace. May was in raptures.

She hurried me home, and we were soon in our room arranging where the things should be put. Our room was 14 feet square. It had two small windows side by side, and even with the modest furniture in it there was barely space to move about. But the matter presented no difficulties to May.

"The wardrobe will stand here nicely," she said, "and the washstand here, Freddie," she said. (She always called me Freddie when pleased.) "And the dressing-table will fit in beautifully between the windows."

I had my doubts, but said nothing. There was little breakfast next morning, for May and the girl had been engaged from daybreak in clearing out the old suite and devising places to store it away. She scouted my idea that we might sell it, and said it would do for the spare room when we got one.

When I arrived home at three o'clock I found the van already at the door and a small crowd of onlookers around it. May was standing, flushed and excited at the gate.

"Oh, Fred, what shall we do?" she cried; "they can't get the wardrobe in!"

As it was, there were four men on our narrow staircase wrestling with the washstand and using the profane language. They had smashed the lamp in the hall, and the plaster all along was furrowed like a cornfield.

By some miracle of handling, known only to furniture men, they negotiated the turning, and the washstand had reached its destination. "That was the top landing. The men tried coaxing and violence, tilted it on end, rammed it at the bedroom door in all sorts of impossible angles, but it would not be put through. So it was left where it was."

We held a hurried consultation in the garden over the fate of the wardrobe. It was out of the question to attempt the stairs with it. The head furniture man announced that it would have to be hoisted in by the window. As the apparatus to do this was not at hand, it was left all night in the garden covered by a tarpaulin.

May was in ecstasy. She had seen Mrs. Markey's face, green with envy, at the window.

In the morning we were invaded early by a gang of men with ropes and pulleys, and the wardrobe was soon dangling between heaven and earth. All the people in the street were at their windows, for the man directing the operation had a voice like a fog-horn.

What an idiot the fellow was! It had never struck him to use his measuring tape. When the wardrobe was got up to the balcony, it would no more go through the window than the washstand through the door. So it had to be lowered over again. May was half crying with vexation.

"Bring it into the dining-room," she said; "we'll make that our room, Fred, and have meals upstairs."

Mrs. Markey and her husband were enjoying it immensely. I could have strangled them.

I ordered the men to bring the thing in by the front door, and caught one of them winking at the other, as he said: "All right, guv'nor."

Of course the thing drew up in the hall, and refused to budge. I might have known it. It was lucky the door could shut.

I gulped down some tea that had been made an hour before, fished at a chop that had been cooked at the same time, and went off to town in a rage.

At dinner that evening May was unusually affectionate. And she looked so pretty that I ground down my hatred of the suite as unworthy of the husband of so adorable a wife.

She was wanting to say something, and it came out at last.

"Darling, we must have a new carpet for our room."

"A new carpet?" I cried; "what is wrong with the one we have?"

"Oh, you know well enough how shabby it is. And Mrs. Wright was here to-day, and said we must really have one to match the suite.

"Anything else?" I inquired grimly. "Oh, she knows a place where we can get a set for the washstand for almost nothing."

"But, my dear girl," I expostulated, "what would be the use of it? We can't perform our ablutions on the stairs."

"I wish you would not try to be sarcastic," said my wife, with dignity; "it does not suit you."

"Neither does the suite," I joked feebly.

May withered me with a glance. In two or three minutes I was routed horse and foot, and had to surrender unconditionally and May was smoothing down my hair by calling me "her own boy."

A week passed. I grew quite expert in the various ways of getting in to bed and learnt to a nicety the course to be steered round the wardrobe.

But May was not happy. The position of the wardrobe and the washstand, which latter I was using to store my collars and shirts on, was a daily heart-break to her. She grew silent and listless, and I cursed the day that brought that ticket into my possession.

One evening, at last, the burden seemed to have been lifted. After a good deal of desultory talk she announced carelessly that she had been out all day looking for another house, and had almost decided on one.

It was a gloomy-looking house in a side street, a house only fit for dying in. But the rooms were immense, and I saw at once that was the attraction for my wife.

The suite would be in its glory in the big bedroom, though I chuckled to myself how the other furniture would look. We moved in at the end of the month, washstand, wardrobe and all.

We had meals in a dining-room whose vastness was accentuated by our small table and sideboard which rose as islands in this ocean of bareness. Our oleographs, which had passed for oil-paintings in the old house, now gave the finishing touch of the ridiculous to the gigantic hall.

And the new bedroom carpet served as a rug in the suite room.

But May was at peace. The light had come back to her eyes. I was beginning to settle down under the new regime when the end came.

One day I got a telegram at the office from May. It said, "Come at once." I rushed home in a hansom with the fear clutching at my heart that something had happened to my darling.

There was nearly a collision at the street corner with a furniture-van, which bore something which gleamed and glittered in the sunlight. The flower bed by the garden path was trodden down as if there had been a fight over it. The front door was open. I rushed in, and then, as I heard loud sobbing upstairs, flew to the bedroom. May was lying on the bed weeping and refusing to be comforted by the maid—and the suite was gone.

We are back now in the old house, and there is another inmate who has replaced the suite in May's affection. I admit him very much, too, but he has a reprehensible habit of turning night into day, and insisting that some one else should keep him company.

The reason for the disappearance of the suite was that the treasurer of the Hibernal Lottery had absconded without paying for any of the prizes, and so the furniture store had sent down for their suite. It was altogether illegal, and could have brought them into serious trouble. But I did not tell May this.

His Sage Conclusion.

"Well, sah, if yo' please, dess go ahead and flung in yo' predestinated pro-ratty, and be done wid it!" a trifle impatiently, said good Brother Shilpaw, who was passing the hat.

"I can't get all day to linger whilst yo' promedicates over the maittals. Dess recollect dat de Lawd loves a churlish giver, and proffawn accawdlin'."

"Yessah! Too be sho!" pleasantly replied old Brother Bimmelick, who was hesitatingly conning over a 25-cent piece, a dime, and a nickel and a copper cent, reposing in the palm of his hand. "Well, uh, den, mah brudder, as I kain't no-ways contribute dis yuh quawtah as churlish as I kin dis Injun-headed penny, I dess suits de action to de words, as dey sez in stories, and chucks de cent piece into de collection dat am bahn' took up for de heathen, uh-way off yonder some'ra, I dunmah whan'."—Woman's Home

VALENTINE DAY IN THE WOOD

Carolyn S. Bailey

On Gandlemas day in the chilly gray weather
The bear and the woodchuck crept slowly together,
With long backward looks over the snow-colored ground,
To see if their shadows were lurking around.

But twisting and turning each sleepy old head,
No shadows they spied, "We must go back to bed,"
Gried Bruin! But, no said the woodchuck, "I pray,
Let's stay and get ready for Valentine day."

So off they went, hawking through meadow and farm,
So softly the sleeping woods spread no alarm,
They stole two goose feathers and what deyos think!
They squeezed elder berries and made them some ink!

They stripped off the bark from a friendly birch tree,
An old inch worm cut it as square as could be;
The edges they bordered with dainty ground-pine,
And wrote for each creature a gay valentine.

Not one was forgotten, not even the owl;
The hare had a lip from the least cotton-tail;
The owl had a heart from the coquettish bat;
The woodchuck's tail served as a pair of brushes for that.

The east-wind played postman as well as he could,
And scattered the valentines far through the wood;
But when they were finished, what do you suppose?
The bear wore a blot on the end of his nose.

And wears it to-day; and look you will see
The woodchuck's tail ink, as ink can be!
For Gandlemas day in the chilly gray weather,
The bear and woodchuck wrote love-letters together.

GEORGIE'S VALENTINE

LITTLE GEORGIE wanted to send some one a valentine, and when his mother suggested that he might mail one to his father he met the suggestion with enthusiasm.

He went with him to the store where they were sold and he finally selected one—a hideous caricature of a man with a large bald head. It so happened that Georgie's papa was bald, and for that reason the little boy thought the one selected would be very appropriate. It was accordingly placed in an envelope and addressed in large printed letters by Georgie himself to his parent. Of course, when the father came upon it in his mail he recognized the scrawl of the writer and chuckled at his small son's deep craft. That night when he arrived home the father had forgotten about the valentine. The little boy wondered why his father did not mention it. Finally, at the tea table, he asked:

"Papa, did you get a valentine to-day?"

"Yes, I did," said the father, frowning to be angry. "And I'd like to know who sent me that horrid picture of a bald-headed man! If I find out, I tell you there will be trouble!"

Georgie took his father's simulated anger in real earnest and seemed greatly disturbed by the turn affairs had taken, but did not say any more about the valentine. After the meal he followed his mother into the kitchen and whispered to her:

"Mamma, he said, craftily, 'I think we better not tell him about the valentine until his hair grows out again!'"

SOME VALENTINE SUGGESTIONS

LOTTERIES make pretty valentines if artistically treated. As a foundation cut a piece of blotting paper three inches by twelve. Make several sheets of the same size and cover the upper one with crepe paper of a good tint. Over the crepe paper lay a heavier paper of a contrasting tone from which has been cut a scroll design, through the openings of which the crepe paper will show. Outline the edges and scrolls with gilt and tie all together with a small bow at one end. The heavier paper may cover only one end of the blotter leaving the crepe paper plain beyond except for the design of gilt which follows the edge.

A small memorandum tablet may be made quite dainty enough for a valentine. Take a piece of heavy cardboard and paste a small block of leaves one side of the center. Punch holes near the top on each side through which to tie ribbon for hanging, and decorate the cardboard in any desired fashion. A pretty head of a child or one of the many types of the American girl makes a good decoration, or if you cannot paint these a small picture, such as has been suggested for calendars, could take its place, and the scroll and outline of gilt be used for farther decoration. The tablet should have a small engagement pencil attached to one side by a length of ribbon for convenience in writing. The tablets are most convenient articles to have in one's room or anywhere about the house, there are always so many lists to be made out of things with which it is quite useless to charge the mind.

Those who neither paint nor draw may still make acceptable valentines, by substituting the needle for the brush or pen. There are many small articles which may be embroidered, and these will prove of even more permanent value.

AN EVERY-DAY SCENE.

NOT A REAL FAIRY STORY.

Pedestrian—What's all that fuss about in that house—a wedding?

Resident—No. A new baby arrived last night and all the women in the neighborhood are going into ecstasies over it.

"Who is that tall man all the women are crowding around?"

"He is a minister, come to fix the date for the christening."

"And who is the short man who attracts so much attention?"

"He is the doctor."

"Ah! I see. That no-account fellow, who is being pushed out of the way or run over, is the hired man, I presume?"

"No; he's the father."

Explaining it.

"It was too much education that landed me here, mum," said the burglar to the visitor at the penitentiary. "I had an assistant who was born in Boston. One night we had a good second-story job, but he quered the whole thing at the last minute."

"How do you mean?" asked the visitor.

"When I told him to climb up the down spout, to get the swag out of the second story, he said: 'I refuse to do anything so paradoxical, and just then the copper woke up and collared us.'—Judge.

Not to Be Stopped.

Lord of the earth—much is man's part, so all the teachers say;
But when the grip gets going a start
He keeps the right of way.
—Washington Star.

QUALIFIED.

"I can't believe, Lieutenant, that you would be contented all your life in the country."

"With you, countess, I certainly should! I've taken a great interest in farming of late!"

"Really?"

"On my word! I've even had hay fever!"—Lustige Blaetter.

A Faulty Theory.

Do you know what I believe about myself?" asked the man with the mystical eyes and the straggling whiskers.

"No. What do you believe about yourself?" mechanically asked the weary listener.

"I believe that I am the reincarnation of Napoleon."

"Nonsense! No matter how much confidence Napoleon had in himself, he wouldn't have wanted to start in at the bottom all over again."—Judge.

The Wedding Prelude.

Little Boy—Say, ma says you are going to take sister off.

Engaged Youth (soon to be married)—Yes, in a few weeks she's going to my home, and my ma and pa will be her ma and pa. See?

"I see. Then she'll be your sister, same as mine. Say, don't you do anything she doesn't like, for if you do she'll bang you around awful when your ma and pa ain't looking."—N. Y. Weekly.

His Opposite.

Jenkins—I am told that the happiest marriages are between people who are exactly opposite in every respect to each other, so I am looking for a young lady of that sort, don't you know?

Miss Port—Then you have come to the right place. Come to the other side of the room and I'll introduce you to a bright, intelligent, well-educated girl.

Why?

Why always strive for "something new?" With main and might! Keep evermore this met in view: "All truth is true."—Judge.

It Would Seem So.

Gyer—Nature may abhor a vacuum, but she isn't averse to an occasional burlesque.

Gyer—How's that?

Gyer—Well, for example, when she made the monkey she evidently had one eye on a man.—Chicago Daily News.

These Assumed Names.

Mrs. Mulhooly—An' ply did yo give the name an' Standish at the police station?

Mr. Mulhooly—Sure, Oi was arrested for bein' drunk an' disorderly, an' it ain't me wud be disgracin' the name of Mulhooly.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Bargain.

Nell—Isn't she a peculiar girl? She wouldn't look at him when he was rich, but now, after he's lost all his money she accepts him.

Belle—Well, you know how crazy every woman is to get anything that's reduced.

His Need.

"What you need, my man, is change of scene."

"Go!"

"What is your business?"

"I'm a scone-shifter at de t'ator."—Houston Post.

Proof.

"Mrs. Newbold has a great many diamonds, hasn't she?"

"I should say so! Before she goes to the opera, she sends for a window dresser."—Life.

"Once upon a time," said little Harry's grandmother, who had been prevailed upon to tell a fairy story, "there was a poor old woman who had to take quite a long journey in a street car. The motorman was careful, when he saw her waiting, to stop his car exactly at the crossing, so that she could get aboard without stepping in the mud, which was very deep in the street, and the conductor reached down kindly and carefully helped her up the steps. The platform was crowded with men, who considerably pressed aside so, that the poor old woman could get into the car without a great deal of trouble. Many people stood in the aisle of the car, but all of them moved forward voluntarily when the poor old woman tried to get in, thus making it unnecessary for her to stumble over the feet of any of them in order to get past the door. The only man who had a seat was a cripple, who was wedged in between two large, richly dressed ladies, and who could not have surrendered his place to the poor old woman even if he had wanted to do so. But it was not necessary for him to exhibit any gallantry. A very beautiful and stylish looking young lady stood up immediately and offered her seat to the poor old woman, who accepted it thankfully. But the beautiful young lady said: 'I do not deserve any thanks. I have done only what it was my duty to do.'"

"Gee, grandma, that's no fairy story."

"What would you call it, then?"

"The worst lie I ever heard."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mysteries of Navigation.

Sweet Girl (in a rowboat)—What is this place in the back of the boat for?

Nice Young Man—That is to put an oar in when you want to scull the boat. Rowing requires both oars, one on each side, but in sculling only one is used. That is placed at the back and worked with one hand.

Sweet Girl (after meditation)—I wish you would try sculling awhile.—N. Y. Weekly.

Easing His Mind.

"And now, ladies and gentlemen," said the lecturer, as he closed his discourse on "The Wonders of Arctic Travel," "I am ready to answer any questions you may feel like asking."

"Do you think, professor," spoke up one of his auditors, in a voice denoting much irritation, "that a man with a bad cough has any business coming to a place like this disturbing everybody around him?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Loss of Literature.

Mrs. Culture—I don't see what is the matter with the magazines. They used to be full of intensely interesting articles, but now they are dreadfully stupid.

Mr. Culture (on an omnivorous newspaper reader)—I think it is likely, my dear, that all the intensely interesting writers have been engaged by the patent medicine proprietors.—N. Y. Weekly.

Explosive.

The Count—Have you asked for ze rich young lady's hand yet?

The Duke—Yes, and I think lightning must have struck the telephone.

The Count—Ah, maybe the wires are crossed?

The Duke—No, I think it is her father who is crossed.—Chicago Daily News.

BOUND FOR THE BENCH SHOW.

He—I understand the man that Carry is engaged to is going to the dogs.

She—That doesn't make much difference, I reckon. Carry is awfully fond of animals.—Rochester Democrat.

Another Possibility.

Jimmy—Adam made the biggest blunder on record. Why, if he had eaten a banana instead of do apple he wouldn't have had a downfall.

Micky—No, not unless he stepped on de peel.—Chicago Daily News.

With the Mitts.

"Excuse me, sir," said Mr. Buttinski, "but have you a good education?"

"Pretty fair, pal," replied the man with oxlike biceps and beer-mallet hands.

"Well, did you acquire it through a long course of study?"

"No, I acquired mine in scraps."

"In scraps?"

"Yes, I am a pugilist."—Chicago Daily News.

Wanted to Know.

"Miss Millions, I have decided that I have lived too long alone; every man ought to have the love and devotion of a companion, a—"

"Are you going to purchase a dog, Mr. Softy?"—Houston Post.

The Futility of Wisdom.

To wisdom each of us pretends
And in his heart declares
If wisdom paid his dividends
We'd all be millionaires.
—Washington Star.

A Natural Feeling.

"When I grow up, pa, I'm going to be a lawyer."

"Then I hope you won't grow up, my son."—New York Press.

Given Free To All Who Ask

Sheboygan Chemist Will Send Liberal Bottle of His Remedy to Any Address, All Charges Paid.

One of the most liberal offers ever made by a responsible business man has recently been announced by M. R. Zaegel, of Sheboygan, Wis., a leading chemist of that city.

M. R. Zaegel, Ph.D.

A few years ago Mr. Zaegel, in the course of his scientific investigations, discovered a wonderful combination of certain mineral and vegetable oils which when applied to burns, piles, cuts, sores and bruises cooled, soothed and allayed inflammation and so constituted a remarkable aid to speedy cure.

The fame of Z. M. O., as he calls it, soon spread far beyond the confines of his home city and thousands of persons in all parts of the country have been convinced of its great merits.

Saturday, Candlemas Day, was observed at St. Mary's Catholic Church with appropriate services. St. Blas Day was Sunday and in keeping with the custom Father Francis administered blessings to many throats.

Dr. J. T. Elliott was called to Woodboro on professional business Monday morning. The return trip to this city was made on a hand car with the thermometer at 30 degrees below. Dr. found the ride anything but a pleasant one.

It's a good old world after all; If you have no friends or money, In the river you can fall; Marriages are quite common and, More people there would be, Provided you take Rocky Mountain Tea. J. J. Reardon.

The Wisconsin & Northern Railroad Company have a new locomotive and coach on the way to Grandin, which will be put in service between this point and the Soo line. Two trips will be made each day to connect with the Soo passenger trains. The trains will probably be put on next week.—Forest Republican.

The Wausau Business College wants you for a student.

Three men were arrested at Laona, this week charged with distributing counterfeit money, out were later released owing to lack of evidence. The little town has been flooded with bad coins ranging in denomination from 5 cents to 50 cent. The coins are all poor imitations of the real article and for this reason are easily detected.

"Cudahy Brothers Co.'s penecek kettle rendered hard like mother used" is what I want." Sold by all up-to-date dealers.

Clarence Hunsley, a young man employed in the Robbins saw mill met with an accident Monday which causes him much pain and will prevent him from working for some time. In some peculiar manner his right hand became caught between a wheel and the belt, badly lacerating the member. The injury was dressed by Dr. Hunsman.

E. H. McNish of Durand, Mich., was the guest of friends here Friday. Mr. McNish who is a locomotive engineer on the Grand Trunk road, was enroute home from a trip through the Western States. He spent ten days at San Francisco and says that that city has built up surprisingly since the earth quake.

Encouraging reports come from Waukegan in regard to the condition of Miss Mayme Spencer, who has been ill for several weeks. She is said to be improving slowly and the family and friends entertain the brightest hopes for her complete recovery. This comes as pleasant news to the young lady's friends in Rhineland.

Father Johnson went to Antigo Tuesday to conduct the funeral of Mrs. J. C. Spencer. Mrs. Spencer was Mrs. E. O. Brown's aunt and was at a sanitarium in Milwaukee for treatment. We note that the Antigo News Item of last week speaks of her steady improvement so that her death must have been very much unexpected.

"What," said a Rhineland lady to the reporter of the New North, "has become of that merchant that used to advertise so extensively in your paper? Can it be that he has quit business? Well, its no wonder; I never did understand how he could advertise to sell goods so cheaply and make a living, you see I know that the New North is the best advertising medium in the county and when I note that a merchant's ad ceases to appear in its columns, I take it for granted that that merchant has either closed up shop or else has nothing left worth advertising."

SHAW DOESN'T LIKE CURRENCY BILL.

SECRETARY OF TREASURY ON PENDING LEGISLATION.

MEASURE IS INADEQUATE

He Tells Missouri Society of New York His Objections to the Proposed Financial Law.

New York, Feb. 1.—Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, was the chief speaker Thursday evening at a meeting of the Missouri Society of New York. He spoke on "Pending Financial Legislation," saying in part:

"The only weakness in our currency is want of elasticity. The root of the evil, which we experience at frequent intervals is not an inadequate volume of circulation, but a want of responsiveness in the volume of circulating medium. A currency which fails to contract when money is plentiful and cheap will of course fail to expand when money is scarce and dear.

Credit Currency Logical. "Credit currency, by which I mean currency against which no collateral is demanded, is the only elastic currency known to man. Much has been said in favor of the adoption of a system of credit currency in this country. If we were creating a new system I am inclined to think it would be the one adopted.

"Naturally, unrestricted credit currency is elastic. No more is issued than is needed, and when it is no longer needed it retires automatically. There are several reasons, however, why the system must not be adopted in its entirety in this country, and every reason for safeguarding in several ways whatever issue may be authorized.

Bill Reported is Inadequate. "The bill recently reported from the committee on banking and currency of the house authorizes a maximum issue of a fraction over $200,000,000. If every national bank in the United States should avail itself of this new privilege, and if the authorized issue should prove relatively as responsive to the changing needs of business as does the credit currency of Canada, there would be an annual contraction of about fifty millions in bank note currency between the maximum issue in the fall and the minimum issue in midsummer, and a corresponding fifty million increase in bank note circulation when the crop moving period arrived.

This fifty million increase in national bank notes would be equivalent to a deposit in national bank depositories of twelve and one-half millions from the treasury. I believe the proposed measure wholly inadequate.

"Permit me to refer to one other consideration which, in my judgment, will materially affect the element of elasticity in the proposed new currency. The bill provides that there shall be kept against this new issue the same reserve as is kept against deposits. The avowed reason for requiring this reserve is the recognized fact that a bank note bears a very close resemblance to a certificate of deposit payable to bearer. It is, however, renewable at the option of the bank issuing it. I believe, therefore, a much smaller reserve than is required against deposits, renewable only with the consent of the depositor, would be sufficient.

Banks Don't Need Help. "If any legislation is to be had let it be solely for the purpose of relieving the country from the frequently recurring stringencies. No plan should be devised primarily to enable the banks to make greater profits. The banks of the country are doing fairly well now and business is prosperous. Nevertheless we are confronted several times a year with conditions admittedly dangerous. Let a plan be devised which will effectually protect against this danger and all will be well.

"I doubt not the proposed legislation would prove profitable to national banks, especially elsewhere than in reserve and central reserve cities, but I do not believe it would result in any perceptible elasticity. In other words, its remedial features are inadequate, and remedial legislation is all we need."

Interesting Happenings in the Various Cities and Towns of the State.

JUDGE WILLIAMS IS UPHELD.

Supreme Court Dismisses Proceedings Brought Against Him.

Madison.—By an equally divided vote the Wisconsin supreme court ordered dismissed the proceedings commenced by District Attorney F. E. McGovern, of Milwaukee county, for a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Orren T. Williams, of the circuit court of Milwaukee to vacate his order dismissing the indictments against County Clerk Otis T. Hare and Frank Keogh on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, and reinstate the case for trial. The defendants were indicted on the charge of having obtained an order for over $9,000 from Milwaukee county on an alleged crooked printing contract. The application of the district attorney for an order to compel Judge Williams to reinstate a criminal action which he had dismissed was a novel one in the history of the courts of this state, and the case has been followed with deep interest by the legal fraternity as well as by those personally concerned.

MAYOR OF SUNBURY Says Peruna Is a Good Medicine.

Hon. C. C. Brooks, Mayor of Sunbury, Ohio, also Attorney for Farmers' Bank and Sunbury Building and Loan Co., writes:

"I have the utmost confidence in the virtue of Peruna. It is a great medicine. I have used it and I have known many of my friends who have obtained beneficial results from its use. I cannot praise Peruna too highly."

HON. C. C. BROOKS.

There are a host of petty ailments which are the direct result of the weather.

This is more true of the excessive heat of summer and the intense cold of winter, but is partly true of all seasons of the year.

Whether it be a cold or a cough, catarrh of the head or bowel complaint, whether the liver be affected or the kidneys, the cause is very liable to be the same.

The weather slightly deranges the mucous membranes of the organs and the result is some functional disease. Peruna has become a standard in thousands of homes for minor ailments of this sort.

PETS FOR LITTLE PARISIANS.

All Kinds of Animals as Playmates for the Children.

Children play a great role in French society, as all those who have read Gyp's inimitable "Ptit Bob" will readily admit, and now the small Parisienne insists on receiving on her fete day and at the New Year a live pet, instead of a costly doll or a mechanical toy. The demand has been creating a supply, and a lively trade is being done, not only in puppies and kittens, in tiny monkeys and in lambs, but also in tigers and leopards. Up to a certain age, these small felines are quite harmless, and, of course, as soon as they begin, so to speak, to show their teeth and sharpen their claws, they are sent off to one of the two magnificent "zoos" with which the Gay City is provided.

TWO SISTERS HAD ECZEMA.

Cuticura Cured Scalp Troubles of Two Illinois Girls—Another Sister Took Cuticura Pills.

"I must give much praise to all the Cuticura Remedies. I used but one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, as that was all that was required to cure my disease. I was very much troubled with eczema of the head, and a friend of mine told me to use the Cuticura Remedies, which I did, and am glad to say that they cured my eczema entirely. Since then we have always kept the soap on hand at all times. My sister was also cured of eczema of the head by using the Cuticura Remedies. Another sister has used Cuticura Resolvent and Pills and thinks they are a splendid tonic. I cannot say exactly how long I suffered, but I think about six months. Miss Edith Hammer, R. F. D. Weekly Budget Gathered by Our Special Correspondent at Madison.

Madison.—The first step to add a medical college to the University was taken January 30 in the senate, when a bill presented by Senator Brown of Waupaca carries an appropriation of $50,000 for this purpose. The plan is disclosed in the bill which provides the university budget of appropriations, and carries $50,000 annually for the establishment of a medical course. Other provisions in the bill give the regents authority to borrow not to exceed $250,000 in any one year from the general fund of the state, such loans to be approved by the governor. Annually for six years the bill provides for an appropriation of $200,000 for the construction, equipment, in the order of greatest need therefor for additional buildings and works and for the enlargement of present buildings. In the budget is an item of $100,000 to be expended in the erection of a woman's building, dormitories, gymnasium, etc.

"Recall" Bill Introduced.

Assemblyman Weber of the social democratic delegation introduced what is known as the county option bill for the pensioning of the blind. It closely follows the Illinois law. Assemblyman Aldridge introduced the recall bill, which the social democrats made a contest two years ago. It is patterned after the California law, some of the provisions of which have been sustained by the supreme court of that state. The bill provides that when 25 per cent of the qualified electors of any city, town, or village desire to unseat an official they can sign a petition for the purpose and election must be called by the proper authorities. The plan was repeatedly introduced by Senator La Follette, as well as Speaker Lenroot, in the last gubernatorial campaign before the primary election. Senator J. H. Stout presented a measure to the revision committee which is designed to subject street car and interurban lines to local assessment and taxation.

Stricter Law on Cigarettes.

J. A. Domachowski, of Milwaukee, introduced a stringent anti-cigarette bill. It provides that no one under 18 years of age shall "smoke or use cigarettes, cigars or tobacco on any public road, street, alley or park, or other lands used for public purposes, or in any public place of business or amusement" under penalty of a fine not to exceed $10 or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding 30 days. It also prohibits any person operating or superintending any public place of business or amusement to allow persons under 18 years of age to use cigarettes or tobacco in such place under pain of a fine of $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second, and imprisonment in the county jail for 30 days for any subsequent offense.

Sturdevant Made Claim Agent.

Former Attorney General L. M. Sturdevant, of Nellville, was appointed special state claim agent to succeed Judge H. S. Constock, of Cumberland, who resigned some months ago. During the legislative session he will examine the bills submitted to the governor for approval and afterward will press the state's swamp and Indian reservation land claims against the federal government at Washington. These claims aggregate over $2,000,000, half of which is for swamp lands granted to the state by the federal government and sold by the latter, and the other half is for certain state lands now included in the six Indian reservations in the state. The compensation of Gen. Sturdevant will be $250 a month and expenses.

For Reciprocal Demurrage.

Senator Froemming introduced his reciprocal demurrage bill, which provides that after the expiration of four days, shippers who have made a demand for cars through the regular channels, shall be entitled to a claim of $1.00 per day for each day the carrier neglects to furnish the cars. Senator Sanborn introduced a bill which provides an appropriation of $11,000.99 for the historical library building to be expended in decorations and internal improvements.

Long Term For Attorney General.

George F. Gressle of Milwaukee introduced two bills and a joint resolution. The latter provides for an amendment to the constitution making the term of the attorney general ten years instead of two, and his salary $10,000 instead of $3,000 a year. It also provides for two assistants for the attorney general at a salary of $5,000 a year.

Appropriation Bills to Come.

The appropriations asked for show an increase and the hopper is not nearly filled by the measures attempting to reach the state strong box. The university is in with bills for increasing the facilities and capacity of that institution and there are no end of ways suggested for which money is to be appropriated. The committee on claims is giving economy serious consideration, and Senator Burns and his associates will pass many a weary hour before they find a solution to the problem.

Attorney General Wants Help.

Attorney General Gilbert will ask for help in the way of a law which will authorize the employment by his department of two additional assistants at a salary commensurate with a lawyer's ability, even if this salary is in excess of his own. He asserts that the interests of the state demand this relief, and that the necessary work of the department cannot be done with the present force and done as it should be, however the employees may endeavor to perform their duties.

For Taxation of Credits.

The first bill for the taxation of credits to make its appearance this session will be presented this week by Senator W. C. Owen, of the Pierce and St. Croix county district. Senator Owen has been giving considerable attention to matters of taxation and believes that the present law exempting mortgages should be repealed. The bill as prepared imposes a penalty in the way of denying the right to maintain an action for foreclosure. In addition to this mortgage taxation bill Senator Owen is planning a measure which, if it passes, will, under the claims of its author, go far toward securing a uniform valuation upon all real estate in any county. The plan is to authorize a county assessment every two years, to be made by men duly qualified and appointed under the direction of county supervisors of assessment. The assessment thus made is to stand as the basis of real estate values, and it is asserted by Senator Owen, will do away with the lack of uniformity now following the efforts of the local boards of review, as well as the efforts of the county board committees on equalization. The assessment in each taxation district is to be made by an assistant supervisor of assessments, who does not reside in the district, but in some other portion of the county, so local influence will not be present in arriving at valuations. It is claimed that the plan is entirely new, and, should Senator Owen's bill pass, a uniformity of valuations will be secured throughout each county upon real estate. The assessment of personal property is to be left in the hands of the local assessors, who also list the real estate, using the valuation fixed by the county assessors as the basis.

A bill drafted by Adj. Gen. Boardman, appropriating $140,000 for the maintenance of the Wisconsin National Guard during the coming two years, will probably be introduced in the legislature late in this week. This appropriation is the same as the guard has had during the last two years.

Work for Claims Committee.

Sympathy is going out to the joint committee on claims, which is confronted with a difficult task this year to adjust the appropriation bills to the prospective revenues of the state for the next two year period. Estimates are given to show that the revenues of the state for the next two years will fall approximately $2,000,000 annually short of the revenues for the two year period inclusive of 1905-07. During that period the state benefited by the extraordinary revenues, derived from sources that can not be again counted upon to fill the treasury. In these receipts were $725,981.88 from the general government as the war tax refund, the deferred tax of the railroad companies and the fees for the increase of the capital stock of the two large railroads of the state. This loss in extraordinary revenue necessitates a readjustment, if a state tax is to be avoided, and this by some of the members is considered impossible.

Rate Calendar is Issued.

The railroad commission of Wisconsin announced the calendar cases which it will call for hearing at its next sitting on February 5. The most important are three brought by the board of trade of Superior against three of the larger railroads. One against the Great Northern alleges that the road makes an unreasonable charge for switching cars of grain from its terminals at Superior to the Lake Superior Terminal and Transfer railroad, that it discriminates in its charges on grain and other merchandise and that it discriminates in favor of A. B. Thompson by leasing an elevator to him at a nominal rent. The second complaint charges the Northern Pacific with making discriminatory rates on grain and other merchandise, and not furnishing reasonable facilities for unloading grain at Superior. The third complaint charges the Omaha company with making discriminatory rates.

Father Hofer Given New Trial.

A new trial was ordered by the supreme court in the case of the Rev. James Hofer, a Catholic priest of La Crosse, charged with a statutory offense in 1905 against Bertha Taylor, an orphan. The girl charged that a drug and hypnotism were employed. Father Hofer was convicted in the lower court. The supreme court says hypnotism cannot be seriously considered, so orders a new trial. Father Hofer has gone into a retreat.

Social Democratic Legislation.

The Social Democratic delegation is believed to have added strength in the assembly by the election of Frank Weber and the Rev. Carl D. Thompson. Two years ago their best talker was Assemblyman Aldridge, and he was the assemblyman spokesman for their ranks. Weber has been one of the labor leaders of the state for 15 years and has addressed every kind of organization unionized into common effort for the betterment of workers. Both he and Thompson are strong speakers.

Will Wed Miss La Follette.

Senator and Mrs. La Follette will soon announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Fola, the actress, to Alfred T. Rogers, of Janesville. La Follette's political lieutenant, confidential adviser and prospective law partner. The marriage will bring to a close the professional career of the senator's daughter. In college productions she always was a favorite, and it was natural that she took to the professional stage upon graduation from the University of Wisconsin.

HOME-TRADE CLUBS

They Should Be Organized and Active in Every Community.

PATRONIZE HOME MERCHANTS

The Great Danger to Local Interests That Are Found in the Mail-Order Systems—Educate the Public.

(Copyrighted, 1906, by Alfred C. Clark)

Why should we trade at home? Why should we consider home in any way more than any other place unless it pays us financially? First, because it is our home. The price we should take in the prosperity of our home town and our neighbors should be sufficient inducement to give them the preference. Second, because beyond all doubt or question, it pays from a money point.

The greatest menace to the country merchant to-day is the mail order business, and with the decline of the country merchant comes inevitable loss to the citizens of both town and country. What at first was considered a great convenience and an exhibition of commendable enterprise has grown to be one of the crying commercial evils. The success of the mail order house is the result of constant, extensive and intelligent advertising. It is not by persistent swindling as some tell us, for no business was ever built up in that way. The home merchant can do no better than to adopt the same method, the judicious use of printer's ink.

While the merchants are the heaviest immediate losers, and could do they cannot consistently ask others to trade with them when they do not patronize their brothers in trade. The editors should patronize home, and even at considerable personal sacrifice refuse foreign advertising for lines of goods in competition with the home merchant. The editor deserves more credit than he receives. Many a well-to-do farmer or city man would think himself perfectly justified in sending away for all his groceries and clothing if he thought he could save ten dollars thereby on a year's purchases, but most editors forfeit many times that much every year by refusing advertising from distant firms in the same lines of business as his home merchants; and sometimes the home merchant even then declines to advertise.

Trade-at-home clubs might be organized, with mottoes something like "Club," or "I Patronize the Home Merchant," or "I Buy Nothing from Mail Order Houses," for members to display. The acceptance and displaying of such a card might constitute a person a member.

Much of the trading away from home is due to thoughtlessness and ignorance of business principles. Many persons consider only the first cost; if they save 25 cents on a ten-dollar order by buying from a mail order house they consider that clear gain. They should be shown that a merchant and his family living in their midst, keeps up a house, pays taxes, adds to the social features, contributes generously towards public enterprises, etc. If by buying at home their town gives support to several more local merchants, creating a better home market, they get back a liberal home market, every man and woman takes more or less pride in local affairs and is willing to contribute something toward home improvement, if the matter is fairly presented.

Are you operating the tread mill to pour the wealth of your community into the bottomless hoppers of the mail-order house? Are you driving your local merchants out of business? If you are you are killing your town and your own interests.

Much toward checking and correcting this growing evil, by liberal advertising and publishing prices, they should not be expected to do it all. Every newspaper should preach home trade, every teacher should instill it into his pupils in the school room, every minister should preach it from the pulpit. The debating societies and political conventions should discuss it.

The interests of town and country and newspaper and church, and no society generally, are so interwoven and so identical that whatever injures one will eventually injure all. When the merchants are compelled to bring on smaller stores, and employ less help, and pay cheaper rent, they are not alone the sufferers; the whole community feels the loss. The price of real estate is largely dependent on its proximity to a good town. Rents are dependent on the amount of business. The merchant can move to some other town and establish himself again more readily than can the professional man and many others who have built up business through years of character, honesty and establishment of acquaintance. If the farmer, or property owner in town, wants to sell out they are the greatest sufferers—they can't move their property to some place where people are booming their town and country by patronizing home.

The remedy lies in education and publicity. In many places that education will come through bitter experience, but, in other communities, where they are quicker to detect the approaching evil, and heed more readily the warnings of the press and friends of home, they may correct the evil more readily. Wealth and power are corrupting influences and the mail order houses are probably not sending out as honest goods as they once did. They have learned the tricks of imitation and substitution and how easy it is to deceive the public. But, if the mail order man is honest, and his methods of advertising legitimate in every way, his success is of no interest to us and will never benefit our community in the slightest degree. If crops should fail or sickness render us short of money we could not expect him to trust us for a dollar—we must always look to the home merchant for credit in times of adversity.

Who is to blame? The mail order house? Not in the least. We alone are to blame. The near-sighted merchant who has lost trade by not acquainting the community with what he has to sell and with the fact that people could obtain at home, where they could personally examine them and return them if defective in any way, goods at as low a price as any catalogue house can sell them, every man and woman is to blame who sends away for goods; and every one who fails to raise his voice in favor of home trade. The editor holds the most responsible position and should be the leader in this movement.

The remedy has been outlined in a general way. We will suggest the first steps. Let merchants buy at home—

"I'm sorry, but I can't pay that bill to-day. You see the butcher has just been here, and—"

"Yes," said the grocer, "I just met him, and he said you put him off because you had to pay me. Here's my bill."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Real Power.

A 17-year-old boy at Worcester, Mass., has a lung capacity of 300 cubic inches. When he grows up and goes to congress he will perhaps learn that it is not the orator but the speaker who affects the course of national legislation.

NEWS OF WISCONSIN

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST IN THE VARIOUS TOWNS.

CONVENTION AT WAUSAU

Buttermakers of the State Will Meet February 6, 7, and 8—Premium Fund is the Largest That Has Ever Been Offered.

Madison.—The sixth annual convention of the Wisconsin Buttermakers' association will be held in Wausau, February 6, 7 and 8. The premium fund, to be awarded on the pro rata plan to all makers having butter at the convention scoring 90 points or over, is the largest ever offered by any state organization, viz.: $1,139.42. This fund will be distributed as soon as the scoring of the butter is finished, which is done in the presence of the maker, if present, in order that the judge and critic may explain wherein the faults, if any, lie. This feature is distinctly a Wisconsin one, having been first tried at the first Wisconsin convention.

BUES DRUG FIRM FOR $3,150.

Naperville Man Accuses Concern of Fraud and Hypnotism.

Milwaukee.—William F. Dahl of Naperville, Ill., has started suit in the Dane county circuit court against the Hollister Drug company of Madison, Wis., manufacturers of "Rocky Mountain Tea," charging fraud, hypnotism and undue influence. He says he was induced to expend $3,150 in a vain effort to introduce the product of the company in a territory in Illinois to which he was assigned. He seeks to recover $3,150.

Titles to Property Clouded.

Milwaukee.—Titles to real estate property involving many thousands of dollars and located in every part of the county, including the city of Milwaukee, are clouded because of inaccuracies and irregularities in making transfers of ownership. Slipshod methods of attorneys in copying from one instrument to another and in recording these with the register of deeds are in most instances responsible for present conditions.

Green Day Man Murdered.

Green Day.—The remains of F. W. Whipple, formerly of Green Day, who was murdered in Nevada, Mo., arrived here and were interred in the family lot. Whipple was the manager of a "medicine" show in Missouri on the night of his death and had repented a drunken member of the audience, who struck Whipple as he turned to leave the scene, death being instantaneous.

May Buy Big Oil Property.

Racine.—Racine capitalists who hold $350,000 stock in the Central Pacific Oil company of Paola, Kan., may buy the entire property, if after an investigation the wells are found to be satisfactory. Reports have reached here that the price of oil is being forced down by the Standard Oil company interests for the purpose of crushing the Paola plant.

Died in His Native Country.

Racine.—Information has been received from Italy that Michael Sasso had died in that country. Mike Sasso was a resident of Ives for over 20 years and was known as the king of the Italian settlement. By shrewd business deals he made a comfortable fortune. Several months ago he went to Italy for a visit, sickened and died.

Cooking Main Is Frustrated.

Green Day.—Sheriff Killman and his deputies foiled 400 Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Appleton and other sports who came for a cooking main at Duck Creek. The police got wind of it and so did the sports. The former outstayed the latter and no fight occurred.

Apoplexy Causes Sudden Death.

Mauston.—A. L. Senger died suddenly while joking with his family. Apoplexy was the cause of his death. Mr. Senger was 62 years of age. At the time of his death Mr. Senger weighed over 300 pounds, and it is thought that this fatty condition had affected his heart.

No Grave; Funeral Delayed.

Pond du Lac.—Joseph Latoro's funeral was held up for four hours because the grave digging had been forgotten. The same thing happened to his grandmother a year ago.

War Veteran Commits Suicide.

Fond du Lac.—John C. Schuster, a veteran of the civil war, was found dead hanging in a clothes closet at his home. He had been in ill health for some time.

Rescuer Burned to Death.

Chilton.—Joe Baker was burned to death while trying to rescue the occupants and belongings of John Grey's house in Harrison township. The loss is total.

Indian Preacher Dies.

Green Bay.—Rev. Cornelius Hill, aged 76, died at Oneida reservation. He was the oldest chief of the tribe and was elevated to office when but 18 years old. He was ordained an Episcopal priest for excellent service.

Gone to Seek Rare Bulls.

Janesville.—John. Downs, until recently employed in a local greenhouse, has been sent to Switzerland to search for rare bulls for the American market.

Many Favor Commission.

Oshkosh.—The recommendation of Gov. Davidson that a commission be appointed to regulate public utilities such as waterworks and lighting plants meets with favor among the representatives of such corporations in this city.

Normal School Regents.

Madison.—Gov. Davidson has appointed Duncan McGregor of Platteville, and John H. Roemer, of Milwaukee normal school regents.

Among the Lawmakers

House Springs Neat, Little Coup by Raising Salaries of Members Without Going on Record—Mr. Roosevelt Cuts Loose When He Attends Parties—Other Washington Gossip.

which he got through the increase won for him the undying admiration of the 385 other members of the house, to say nothing of the delegates and resident commissioner from Porto Rico.

Representative Littauer, however, everything fixed when he called up the legislative appropriation bill, which had come back from the senate with amendments. He asked that all the amendments be disagreed with and the bill sent to conference, with the exception of the amendment to increase the salaries of the vice president, the speaker of the house, and cabinet officers to $12,000 a year. To this he asked there be added an amendment increasing the salaries of senators and representatives and the delegates and resident commissioner from Porto Rico from $5,000 to $7,500 a year, and the salaries of cabinet officers from $8,000 to $12,000 a year.

After some discussion the question was put on a rising vote and carried, 133 to 92. Instantly came a demand for a record vote from the grand stand performers who want their salaries increased but don't want any one to think they do. The speaker put the demand, and when 50 or more arose the speaker could count only 34, "not a sufficient number." No one thought (out loud) to demand "the other side."

An hour or more after the house had adopted the provision for an increase in the salaries of senators and members the bill was returned to the senate for the purpose of securing the action of that body. There isn't any doubt the senate will accept the salary increase amendment.

The increase will become effective March 4 next. All the senators whose terms will begin then and all the representatives elected for the Sixtieth congress will get the benefit of it.

PRESIDENT HAS A GOOD TIME AT RECEPTION.

When President Roosevelt goes to a reception outside of the White House he has a good time. He must be bored to the limit by being forced to stand at his own receptions, while the people file by him each individual's name being howled out by a leather-junged army officer who stands at the president's left. The whole performance is stilted and unnatural, but it must be gone through with every so often.

Vice President Fairbanks gave a reception the other night and suddenly without any "Star Spangled Banner" from the band or any ushering aids, the president appeared. He shook hands with Mr. Fairbanks and with his daughter, Mrs. Timmons, and with Miss Cannon, who were at Mr. Fairbanks' left, and then he literally dug into the big crowd of people, hailing everybody whom he knew—that is the men—after the manner of a boy enjoying a holiday. He joked with Democratic senators and representatives and received thrusts and gave thrusts, sharp but jovially good natured. On that reception night scores of persons who thought the president didn't know them from a "side of sole leather" found themselves called by name and the last place of meeting mentioned. The president has a memory for names and faces that would make some politicians despair.

The president's visit to the Fairbanks' was not a perfunctory one, by any means. He had such a good time wandering about where he chose and talking at length to whom he listed, that he stayed until it was just about time to put out the lights. Then he went downstairs, stood in line with a check for his hat and coat in his hand, refused to take precedence of any of the waiters in line, and then he disappeared into the darkness without. Mr. Roosevelt is democratic enough to suit any of the plain people; he is too shockingly democratic to suit some of the millionaire senators to whom money has brought a tremendous burden of dignity.

SOCIETY GIRLS ARE GOOD EQUESTRIENNES.

There are 300,000 people in Washington, and nearly half of them ride horseback. The capital is a riding center, and here one sees every known quality of horsemanship and horsemanship. On the roads leading out of the city given over to the riders it is possible to see the Cossack seat, the Arab seat, the continental seat, the English seat and the American seat, and the American plainsman's seat, though the two latter are practically one and the same thing—the easiest and the most graceful riding seat in the whole wide world.

The women ride constantly in Washington. It is a good thing for the Washington-born girl whose parents are in civil life that there always is a large contingent of Uncle Sam's army officers stationed in the capital. If this were not true she would ride as do the foreign women, in a manner to the loss of grace in the saddle.

The army officers—the older ones with families, at least—taught their daughters how to ride before orders came sending these elder soldiers to Washington. The army girls as little children learned on the plains of the west, and if there are any more graceful riders in the world among woman-kind than are these daughters of the blue, the representatives of the more graceful forms of riding have not yet appeared in the capital.

Miss Helen Hatfield, daughter of Col. Charles A. P. Hatfield, Thirteenth United States cavalry, now stationed at Fort Myer, just across the Potomac from Washington, is one of the finest woman riders in the United States. She is a debutante of this winter, and is an extremely popular and also strikingly good-looking girl. It has been said of her that she is the best rider in her father's regiment. She has the seat of a regular, and the horse doesn't live of which she is afraid. The other Washington girls strive to ride like Miss Hatfield. They may emulate their foreign sisters in other things, but when it comes to a seat in the saddle they are satisfied with things American after one glimpse of an army girl sending a gray or a bay or a black over a country road.

FINE EXAMPLE OF ORIENTAL ART OF JOLLYING.

The sultan of Morocco may be the head of a backward nation and the source of anxiety to the world's powers, but he is an expert at fine writing and the donation of literary bouquets. This is proved by a personal letter recently received by President Roosevelt from the sultan. It was forwarded in a red plush and beautifully decorated case by Minister Gummere at Tangier, who has recently returned from a caravan journey to Fez. The letter itself is in classic Arabic and the translation is as follows:

"Written in our Holy Court at Fez, 7th, Shoual, 1324. (November 24, 1906.)

"In the name of God the Clement, the merciful. There is neither power nor might but in God the exalted, the Almighty.

"To the beloved, the most cherished, the exalted, the most gracious friend, most honored and excellent president of the United States of America, who is the pillar of its great influence and the director of its most important affairs, the most celebrated preserver of the ties of true friendship, to the faithful friend, Theodore Roosevelt.

"After offering praise to God, the Almighty and powerful, the King of Kings, the helpful Lord, we have received your kind letter expressing your good will and the purest love which dwells in the secret recesses of the heart and appointing the wise Samuel L. Gummere as Minister Plenipotentiary of your respected nation, in our holy country, who, as you well said, is possessed of perfect knowledge of the ties of friendship existing between the two nations, and of a desire to increase the same.

"As you request we receive the Minister with great satisfaction, and welcome, and accordingly bestow upon him our complete confidence in everything he may present to us on behalf of Your High Excellency and on behalf of your nation, at the same time highly appreciating your prayers on our behalf.

"We are certain of these relations of amity and of the purest, strongest love which you have for us, and which we hope will continue to increase."
